

Cornea, External Eye Diseases & Eye Banking (Editorial Board Member)

Wei CHEN (China)

Dr. Wei Chen is Professor of Ophthalmology and the Head of Cornea Service in the affiliated eye hospital of Wenzhou Medical University in Zhejiang Province. He graduated from Wenzhou Medical University with Medical Degree in 1998 and Shanghai Fudan university with PhD in 2002. He was trained as postdoctoral research fellow in Schepens Eye Research Institute-an affiliate of Harvard Medical College and Ocular Surface Center in Baylor. He was an author on over 80 scientific research publications including 50 internationally peer-reviewed papers such as AJO, IOVS, Cornea, BJO, etc. He also served as reviewer for 10 international journals in the field of ophthalmology and vision science including IOVS, BJO, Cornea, JCRS, etc. He was advisory member of China cornea society and founding member of Asia Dry Eye Society. He had been invited as speaker in 20 international meetings. He has more than 2500 cases of experiences of DALK, DSAEK/DMEK, PKPs and Boston Keratoprosthesis surgeries. His clinical and research interests include molecular mechanism and animal model of dry eye, corneal tissue engineering, corneal transplantation.