

Call for Applications

The American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists is accepting applications for the position of Editor-in-Chief of Obstetrics & Gynecology.

Responsibilities

- Taking an active role in identifying emerging areas of importance in the field of obstetrics and gynecology and actively soliciting research being done in those areas
- Creating and leading a roster of Editors and Editorial Board members that is representative of the diversity of ACOG's membership and expertise
- Actively recruiting authors and peer reviewers that represent the breadth of knowledge in the field
- Facilitating a culture of inclusivity, keeping in mind the diverse audiences that comprise ACOG and the journal readership
- Leading work consistent with ACOG's Commitment to Changing the Culture of Medicine that ensures submission and publication guidelines promote diverse scholarship and thought leadership
- Collaborating with the Managing Editor, other journal staff, and Associate Editors to ensure timely peer review and processing of over 2,000 submissions annually
- Professionally representing ACOG and the journal in contemporary media outlets and scientific meetings
- Collaborating with the Managing Editor, ACOG Publisher, and the journal's commercial publisher to develop the journal as a valuable publication forum, understand the journal's business model, and review financial operations

Qualifications

- A medical degree, membership in the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, and a current or past academic appointment in obstetrics and gynecology
- Strong evidence of scholarly pursuits in the field
- Broad, in-depth knowledge of the specialty of obstetrics and gynecology and current trends and advances
- Substantial experience in writing, editing, and reviewing scientific articles for publication with ability to plan, coordinate, and manage tasks associated with journal publication
- Demonstrated administrative and leadership abilities; excellent communication skills
- Success in developing collaborative relationships with peers, direct reports, community partners, and professional colleagues
- Willingness to cultivate Obstetrics & Gynecology as a primary interest and to make the necessary time commitment
- Clear vision for sustaining and enhancing the reputation, quality, and readership of the journal

To apply, please submit your curriculum vitae and a cover letter with qualifications and reasons for interest in the position to Jeanne Robinson, ACOG Chief Human Resources Officer, at jrobinson@acog.org. Please refer back to the job description.
