Publish Your New Behavioral Science Research in The Journal of Nervous and Mental Disease

Editor-in-Chief:
John A. Talbott, MD
Frequency: 12 issues/year
Ranking: 89 of 142 in Psychiatry and 134 of 197 in Clinical Neurology

The Journal of Nervous and Mental Disease continues its long-standing tradition of publishing submissions from graduate and post-graduate students. The Journal of Nervous and Mental Disease publishes peer-reviewed articles containing new data or ways of reorganizing established knowledge relevant to understanding and modifying human behavior, especially that defined as impaired or diseased, and the context, applications and effects of that knowledge.

For questions about the submission process or the publication of your paper, please contact Christopher Miller at Chmiller@som.umaryland.edu or the Editorial Office at journalnmd@kwfco.com.

*2017 Journal Citation Reports (Clarivate Analytics, 2018)

---

Benefits for Authors

As an author, there are many benefits when you publish in The Journal of Nervous and Mental Disease.

Global Readership
When you publish your research in The Journal of Nervous and Mental Disease, you’ll be reaching the research community around the world. The Journal of Nervous and Mental Disease has readership in more than 185 countries.

International Editorial Team
The Editors and Editorial Board are an international group of top research and clinical leaders that includes many pioneers of the field, representing many areas of expertise.

Established Journal Ethics
The Journal of Nervous and Mental Disease has clear peer-review guidelines. Visit jnmd.editorialmanager.com for author instructions and guidelines.

Open Access Capabilities
The Journal of Nervous and Mental Disease offers authors the capability to open their work to the world using an open access license. The Journal of Nervous and Mental Disease is compliant with all major funder mandated open access policies.

Submit your manuscript at jnmd.editorialmanager.com