

The Journal of Nervous and Mental Disease, seeks Diversity Editorial Fellows. Applicants should have at least two years of psychiatry and neurology training with research activity, have an MD or PhD degree, have completed clinical specialty training, have an interest in diversity, equity and inclusion and hold faculty positions at the instructor or assistant professor level or other junior faculty level equivalent. Candidates who have published peer-reviewed papers, have strong knowledge of psychiatry and neurology science, and a record of commitment to and achievement in academic medicine are encouraged to apply.

Published monthly, the JNMD promotes excellence in the practice of psychiatry and neurology. The Journal is published for physicians and other health professionals who seek the most current science and information related to treating psychiatric disorders. The journal publishes clinically relevant research, commentaries and clinical controversies, as well as case reports, clinical trials, and health services research.

Under the supervision of JNMD editors, the Fellow will be given the following responsibilities:

- Work as Handling Editor using the electronic manuscript submission system and engaging in the manuscript review process for several manuscripts a year.
- Synthesize reviewer comments, prepare, and communicate to the authors with revision requests, and participate in the final manuscript decision—communicating regularly with the Editors.
- Commit to one to two hours a week.
- Participate in monthly 30-minute conference calls with the Editor-in-Chief, Managing Editor, Co-Editors, publishers, and attend annual APA meetings at which Editorial Board meetings are held.
- Write or co-write editorials for the Journal if the editors determine you have the required experience and interest.
- Research and write a piece suitable for publication on Diversity, Equity and Inclusion in psychiatric publications, including the JNMD.

The two-year Editorial Fellowship offers an annual $500 stipend. Please submit your CV and one-page letter describing your interest and how your skills, experience and interests match the requirements to lauren.briede@wolterskluwer.com. Candidates invited for an interview will be asked to disclose conflicts of interest.
