

Journal of Addiction Medicine

Now Accepting Applicants for Editorial Fellowship Program

Application Deadline: October 21, 2022

The Journal of Addiction Medicine \(JAM\), the official peer-reviewed journal of the American Society of Addiction Medicine, seeks Editorial Fellows. Applicants should have at least two years of addiction research experience, have an MD, PhD, DSc, or PsyD degree, have completed clinical specialty training, and hold faculty positions at the instructor, or assistant professor level or other junior faculty level equivalent.

Candidates should have published at least 3 peer-reviewed papers, have strong knowledge of addiction science, and a record of commitment to and achievement in academic addiction. Candidates with expertise in epidemiology/pharmacoepidemiology, child and adolescent psychiatry, or qualitative analysis/mixed methods are encouraged to apply.

Published six times a year, JAM promotes excellence in the practice of addiction medicine and clinical research and elevating addiction medicine to a mainstream medical specialty. The Journal is published for physicians and other health professionals who seek the most current science and information related to treating addiction disorders. The Journal publishes clinically relevant research, including case reports, case series, clinical trials, and health services research.

Under the supervision of JAM editors, the Fellows will be given the following responsibilities:

- Work as Handling Editor using the electronic manuscript submission system and engage in the manuscript review process for 6-12 manuscripts a year.
- Synthesize reviewer comments, prepare, and communicate them to authors with revision requests, and participate in the final manuscript decision—communicating regularly with the Editors.
- Commit to 3-4 hours a week.
- Participate in weekly 30-minute conference calls with Editor-in-Chief, Managing Editor, Co-Editors, publisher, and society representatives and attend annual ASAM conference and Editorial Board meetings.
- Write or co-write editorials for the Journal if the editors determine you have the required experience and interest.

Fellows will obtain extensive experience in manuscript review and scientific peer-reviewed publishing in addiction medicine. The two-year Editorial Fellowship offers an annual $500 stipend. Fellowships will begin January 1, 2023, and run through December 21, 2024.

Apply online here.

Candidates invited for an interview will be asked to disclose conflicts of interest.