What content is Medicine® looking for in the area of pediatrics?
“The following pediatric subjects represent recent additions to Medicine® from the past six months that were considered of particular interest during the COVID-19 pandemic:
• Physical distancing and COVID-19 transmission in schools
• Sleep problems in children with ADHD and autism during the COVID-19 pandemic
• Thrombotic complications in pediatric COVID-19 and MIS-C patients
• Myocarditis following COVID-19 mRNA vaccination
• Obesity in children during COVID-19 pandemic.”

What advice would you give to researchers looking to publish their work in Medicine®?
“I have some advice that may help new scientists improve their scientific writing and the probability of having their work published in Medicine®.
Your research should be rigorous and solve a significant medical problem. More precisely, high-impact journals like Medicine® look for societally significant medical studies. They must address an important medical issue and have profound implications — either for an application or something more fundamental.”
