Topic Description:

Complexity Leadership

We are looking for innovative leaders/thinkers to demonstrate this shift in the role of the complexity-driven leader. We look to have our author colleagues demonstrate how these new models evidence the emergence and application of complexity leadership in different health networks at every place in the system. We are looking for manuscripts that show/demonstrate the following characteristics:

- new roles of the leader (including the emerging role of the DNP)
- new organizational designs in networks that change work processes, relationship, and communication
- new complexity leadership skill-sets or applications that work effectively to guide complex systems/networks
- shifting care delivery approaches that require a change in the role/behavior of the leader
- challenges to traditional models of leadership with new thinking about the leader role and behaviors
- experiments with new approaches to learning and demonstrating leadership for health networks
- translations of the work of “The Quantum Leader” textbook through demonstration of its concepts in the clinical/manager environment.

There is a short turnaround of 3 months. Articles need to be submitted to editors no later than September 1, 2019. Thanks in advance for your continuing dedication to excellence in leadership and scholarship.
